Though no agreement was reached by the tariff conferees to-day on coal, lumber, hides, oil, iron ore, the cotton schedule or wood pulp and print paper, it was said to-night that the prospects of settling these big questions to-morrow were excellent.

For a time to-day it appeared as if these so-called national issues might be disposed of by the conferees before nightfall. However, when adjournment was taken the matters under discussion were still unsettled.

Should the conference complete its work to-morrow it would be unable to reach Congress with a report before Tuesday, as the House has adjourned until that day.

Belind Closed Doors.

Efforts were made to-day to dispose of existing differences and to carry put President Taft's program for a reduction of duties on raw materials. All except the actual conferees were excluded from the chamber, and it was agreed that discussions leading up to a settlement of any of the "national issues" should be regarded as confidential.

The consideration of the question of hides had not proceeded far before it developed that the difference between the two houses was almost irreconcilable unless boots and shoes and other leather goods should be greatly reduced it hides were to go on the free list.

Nominations Confirmed.

"On all subjects of the bill which directly affect the consuming masses and the cost of living, the Democratic view was in effect unanimous for much lower duties than those adopted.

the two houses was almost irreconcilable unless boots and shoes and other leather goods should be greatly reduced if hides were to go on the free list.

Westerners Kicking.

Senator Aldrich had reports from many Western Senators protesting against a removal of the duty on hides or a reduction below 10 per cent. Advicement. The only terms on which the Western Senators would consent to consider the abolition of the duty involved the removal of the duty on leather goods.

Discussion then turned upon the amount of reduction the leather trades could stand without serious injury. As a variety of opinions were expressed it soon became apparent that the conference Committee, and therefore an adjournment was taken until to-morrow, when the strict executive session inaugurated to-day will be resumed.

May Reach Agreement To-Day.

It would surprise few people outside of the conference-room if an agreement is reached to-morrow substantially reducing the duties on hides and all leather goods.

After the duty has been fixed on hides and leather goods, little difficulty is apprehended in reaching an agreement to put oil on the free list and in compromising upon a duty of about 45 cents a ton on coal, a rate of $1.25 per 1.000 feet on rough lumber, with proportionate differentials, and a rate of about $3 a ton on print paper. Iron ore is expected to give more trouble than any of these subjects except hides.

Many Senators thought little objection would be made to placing iron or the free list but beautor for the differentials, and a rate of story and the free list but be senator grown and the courte' have received and are rece half an hour to-day the Senate adjourned until next Monday, which is a day earlier than would have been possible under the unanimous agreement for sessions only on each third day while the tariff bill is in conference. The date was moved up in the hope that the 'conference report would be in shape to be presented by Monday.

The motion for the modification of the unanimous agreement, so as to permit a meeting on Monday, was made by Senator Kean.

"Is there any special reason for the change?" asked Senator Culberson on behalf of the Democratic minority.

"I think there is," responded Mr. Kean.

"Is there a probability of a report on the tariff bill?" Mr. Culberson asked.

"If think so," answered Mr. Kean.

Position of Democrats.
Senator Culberson presented a brief statement outlining the record of the Democratic party in the Senate on the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. He asked for the printing of a series of tables showing the votes of the Democratic members on all the more important questions before the upper branch in connection with the tariff. In doing so he made a brief explanation.

"An impression seems to have been created in some quarters," he said, "that in their action on the tariff bill, which is now in conference, the Democrats of the Senate have been divided and have often voted with the protectionist majority."

He then presented the record to show this impression to be unfounded. Continuing, he said:

downpour, which lasted an hour, commenced.

As soon as the clouds had partially passed by the sovereigns gathered at the warehouse to welcome the scouts, and we had a real refreshing little informal meeting, in spite of the downpour. Among the callers were Mayor Easiey, T. H. Owen, Judge Henry Wood, R. H. Owen, E. L. Morton, H. M. Harris, J. W. Friend, C. N. Tisdale, Dr. John Drake, J. P. Taylor and a score or more of others. We had an hour's informal conference, and, of course, good roads was the theme.

Clarksville is a regular good roads hothed. The magisterial district has voted $50,000 of bonds and work is progressing. We saw the convicts and the crushers at work on the edge of the town: Only, yesterday a delegation from Henderson and Oxford, N. C., was here and entered into an agreement with the people of Clarksville district to go into joint good roads building, the Clarksville people agreeing to macadamize from here to the Granville county, N. C., line, seven miles distant, provided the North Carolina people will meet them at the line with a macadam road from Oxford and Henderson. This gives Clarksville a splendid chance to get the capital-to-capital line, for it already has a tremendous advantage in the possession of a magnificent iron.

gives Clarksville a spiendid chance to get the capital-to-capital line, for it already has a tremendous advantage in the possession of a magnificent iron bridge here over the Rusancke, it being the only bridge on that stream except the one at Roanoke Rapids.

This bridge and the macadam line of road proposed to be built by this Clarksville-Oxford-Henderson combination, together with the bridge over the Roanoke, will be a mighty link in the proposed capital line, and it is certainly calculated to make Clarksville a strong bidder for a place on the line.

The aid the Clarksville people will get from the State in the way of convict labor, etc., practically increases the present amount they have available for good roads to $80,000.

Chase City Renched.

From Clarksville we came direct to Chase City over a road that was in the first eight miles very bad. It was another of those cross-country roads over hills and dales, and the heavy rain that caught us at Clarksville had made them muddy, very muddy, and the car had a hard time climbing the hills and plowing through the muddy dales.

It was the poorest time that has been made on the trip. The other twelve miles of the run was over well-worked and fairly good roads.
